Session description:

Transportation systems are facing significant challenges due to the increasing demand for both goods and passengers, coupled with constraining requirements concerning their environmental impact. This special session focuses on sustainable and eco-friendly transportation systems, including railways, electric vehicles, drones, shared mobility and collaborative transport.

The objective is to offer insights and trends in performance evaluation, modelling, and optimizing of sustainable transportation systems. This encompasses various decision problems such as network design, performance assessment, routing, capacity analysis and planning, as well as scheduling and operations management. The topics of interest include, but not limited to:

- Data analytics based approaches.
- Mathematical modelling.
- Optimization algorithms.
- Simulation and stochastic approaches.
